

The do not call list has been one of the best programs to avoid annoying interruption in your activities, To be called from eating, to be awakened when you are trying to sleep, to be interrupted when you are doing a high priority thing is an appreciated move on the part of the government. Although the advertisers was the programs back, I believe that it runs counter to their intentions of calling you ie you are usually so disturbed by the unsolicited interruption, that you would not buy from them or participate in any of their programs. They have ample opportunity to solicit business in less intrusive ways
